Irvine Ranch Water District's Natural Treatment System and Cleaning Up Inflows to Newport Bay

The Natural Treatment System is a series of small wetlands which are designed to treat dry weather runoff, urban runoff, and small storm flows in the San Diego Creek watershed. In these wetlands, contaminants are removed and prevented from reaching the Upper Newport Bay. The Natural Treatment System also provides riparian habitat and water-quality benefits to wildlife throughout the watershed.

Guest speakers will be Peer Swan, IRWD Board Director and Ian Swift, Supervising Wetlands Biologist. Questions and answers will follow the presentation.
